What is God Saying?

In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. 1 Thess. 5:18

We are very thankful for all the volunteers that jumped in and contributed to our recent pizza fundraiser for Grace Haven. It was a very good success and help to our budget. Thank you in whatever way you may have contributed as we the staff are very grateful to God for you!

We continue to enjoy and feel so blessed to be in our new office space. When I sit at my beautiful desk made by Ayr Cabinet and I look around, I am reminded and moved to gratitude for all the memories and people involved in the reconstruction of this office. We are still trusting the Father for approximately $40,000 to get everything paid, and I believe He will make this happen as we are faithful to continue trusting Him. It's always a challenge for this Western world mind-set of mine to rest in Him for my needs and maintaining that constant awareness of not running ahead or lagging behind.

I have recently been strengthening communication with our advisory board and having speaking engagements in our supporting churches. While that has been a joy, it has also been building a greater awareness in the hearts of people for what they could have. Many are asking for applications and the result, you guessed it, is longer waiting lists. Pray for us as we discern when to consider adding another counselor to our team. It's a good feeling to know that we have the space; however, we wait for the Lord's timing on funds and trust Him to grow His work. →

Isaiah 40:31...but they who “wait” on the Lord, He will renew their strength. The word “wait” is an action that invites our heart into a rest, which in turn calls for a surrender and release to trust the Father and therefore results in having our strength renewed. I believe our creator God daily calls each of us into this rest with Him. Failing to yield to the Holy Spirit promptings will lead each of us to an unintended emotional drain that further leads to anxiety, insecurities, confusions, and vulnerability to believing lies which lead to a lot of hopeless, depressing, and frustrating situations that deplete all our energy. Would you join me in entering into this “rest” so our strength can be renewed like the eagles so we can live for the Father’s glory?
God bless you as you consider entering into this “Rest”.

Mel Eash

Thank you... to the Salem youth and sponsors for doing yard clean up at Grace Haven. They were a huge help picking up branches and raking stones out of the yard. We are so grateful!

The Goodness of God

The sessions were not very easy at first...the morning of our last session, my husband gave me a smile like I haven’t seen since our wedding day. The peace we feel is just amazing to me. Our children respond better to us and everybody is much happier.

I am grateful we can go on releasing others to God and also releasing my own bitterness and failures to God so we can go on in peace and joy.

I found my identity in simply being a daughter of the King! Praise God!
